

Online Speech Therapy Solutions for Schools

It is no secret that there is a growing shortage of speech-language pathologists in U.S. schools. Thousands of job openings go unfilled because speech therapists cannot be found. Even after many hours and important resources are spent on recruiting speech therapists, it is just as hard to retain them.

75% of speech therapists say the reason they leave a school is an increased caseload or workload.

A Facilitator is a volunteer, teacher, or paraprofessional who is available to open the virtual classroom for therapy sessions and to act as a liaison between the teachers and therapists as needed.

For a majority of the time the Facilitator works on other things while the students are in their online sessions. Occasionally, the therapist may need the Facilitator to assist the student during therapy.
